

Featuring PROLiNK's Hurricane 9000P

The Nation

customise | directory | community | search | shopping | site map

- home
- latest news
- headlines
- national
- regional
- politics
- business
- finance
- technology
- sport
- opinion
- special report
- features
- expat page
- entertainment
- education
- letters
- cartoon
- byteline
- weekend
- the link
- travel & tourism
- learn english
- learn thai
- supplement
- Entire database

Nation search

Web search

e - jobs search

Affiliate Sites

- Nationgroup
- Krungthep Turakij
- Kom Chad Luek
- Nation Channel
- Nation Weekend

[TECHNOLOGY]

 Print this page  Send to friend

E-SHOPPING: The bit rate makes the difference

Published on Jul 26, 2004

"High-speed Internet is now much more practical if you have a good-quality modem

With the price of ADSL broadband Internet connection services having tumbled recently, it may be a good time to subscribe and use the Internet at high speed.

So, it may be a time to shop for a good ADSL modem to link with your choice of ADSL Internet connection provider.

The entry level ADSL (Asymmetric Digital Subscriber Line) service from True Corporation, more commonly known as TelecomAsia, starts at only Bt590 a month for a 256-kilobit uploading speed and 128-Kbps download speed with unlimited Internet use.

.....An ADSL modem / router with one network port is a good buy but the best buy is one with a four-port network switch.

The four-port network switch lets you easily set up your home network and allows any computer in your home to connect to the Internet independent of any others.

At a price of Bt2,790, the PROLiNK Hurricane 9000P is the most interesting modem, as it also comes with a four-port network switch.

It's also easy to set, especially for True Corporation's high speed Internet Service, as it has already set the value of VPI and VCI to be 0 and 100 respectively as used by the company."

PROLiNK
Hurricane 9000P